RUSSIAN FLEET ATTACKS BRITISH FISHING VESSELS

Two Men Killed, a Number Wounded and Two Trawlers Sunk in 20-Minute Bombardment of Fishing Fleet by Russian Baltic Squadron Passing Through the North Sea---Great Excitement Is Caused.

Hull, Eng., Oct. 22.—A. E. Jackson & Co., solicitors for 30 Hull fishing boats, have notified the foreign office and admiralty of an attack on the Hull fishing fleet by the Russian Pacific fleet, customarily designated as the Baltic fleet.

The official information is that short. It after midnight Friday, the Russian squadron fell in with the Hull fishing fleet in the North sea. The first portion of the fishing fleet passed safely. Then the Russian ships turned their search lights on the British vessels for some time and a little later opened fire.

Vessel Sunk and Man Killed.

The steam trawler Crane was sunk, and the decapitated bodies of her skipper and mate have been brought to Hull. The boatswain and other members of the crew who are understood to be seriously wounded are on board the mission ship. Only the slightly injured members of the crew have arrived at Hull.

The steam trawlers Moulmein and Mino have arrived at Hull seriously damaged by shots, the latter having 36 holes in her hull. It is feared that other damage was done to trawlers and that at least one more was lost with all hands.

Russians Opened Fire.

According to other reports the affair occurred 250 miles off Spurn Head. The Russian ships were steaming in line. The leading ships of the fishing fleet passed without incident, though most of the Russian vessels passed searchlights of the trawlers long enough to prevent any mistake as to identity. After the bulk of the squadron had passed it opened fire, nearly all participating in the firing.

The Crane was struck below the water line and raked above deck. Skipper Smith and Third Hand Leggon had their heads carried clean away by a shot, many of the crew being seriously wounded. Another trawler also was sunk, but the seagull, which brought the news to Hull has no particulars as to her fate.

Intense Excitement.

The news has created an intense sensation and indignation in Hull. The Moulmein arrived with her flag at half mast. Her skipper states that the trawlers were fishing about 250 miles east of North of Spurn Head at 1 o'clock Saturday morning, the weather being hazy, when the outlines of several vessels appeared dimly warships sailing in a line were dimly seen.

While the crew were watching the warships, searchlights were flashed upon them, in the glare of which the Moulmein's crew observed what they took to be torpedo boats approaching apparently with the intention of boarding the Moulmein.

Several Vessels Struck.

They steamed away, however, and soon the fishermen were horrified to find they were being fired upon. First one and another trawler was struck by the flying shots. What seemed to be a round shot went through the Moulmein's galley. The Mino lying nearby also was struck with many shells, but fortunately the damage was above her waterline and none of the crew was struck.

The bombardment lasted about 20 minutes. When it was ceased the fleet sailed southward and out of the trawlers' ken at full speed. The Moulmein steered in the direction of the rockets. Seven more were heard, and the Crane was found sinking with another trawler taking some of her crew. These seven injured were removed to a mission ship and the bodies of Smith and Leggett were placed aboard the Moulmein.

The men with other injuries were not aboard the trawler Angelo, which at a late hour had not arrived at Hull.

Owners have gathered around, but no further information is available.

Representatives of the fishing fleet started late tonight for London to consult with the Admiralty there.

No motive can be explained for the extraordinary procedure of the Russian warships.

Survivor of the Crane.

The only survivor of the Crane who has yet reached here is E. A. Smith, son of the deceased skipper and who with the captain of the Moulmein and Mino is going to London to consult with the authorities.

Young Smith was asleep in his bunk when the firing aroused him. Just as he was getting up a shot struck the starboard and penetrated to the forecastle, crushing a lamp near which he was standing. He rushed on deck where the searchlights revealed the horrible sight of his father and Leggett lying headless and the deck littered with the injured. It was soon found that the vessel was sinking and signals for assistance were sent up.

Smith and others remain in the details of the firing that have already been given.

NO OFFICIAL BRITISH VIEW OF THE OUTRAGE OBTAINABLE

London, Oct. 21.—Foreign Minister Lansdowne and M. Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, both were out of town yesterday and all the government officials in London [illegible] on Sunday, thereby no official news could be gleaned of the story of the attack upon a British fishing fleet in the North sea.

[illegible] in London were regarded as almost impossible. This, however, cumulative evidence no longer left doubt of the general accuracy of the reports notwithstanding the [illegible] as to what possible motive could have led Russian officers into such an extraordinary and inexplicable course of action, which, unless a satisfactory explanation is forthcoming forthcoming could only be regarded as an act of war. This is the view taken editorially by all the morning papers. The worst feature of the story, as viewed here is the heartlessness displayed by the Russian fleet in steaming away without taking the trouble to ascertain the damage their fire had inflicted and without any effort to succor the victims.

Newspaper Comment.

While admitting the necessity of a suspension of judgment for investigation and explanation, the morning newspapers are unanimous in demanding that the government instruct Ambassador Hardinge to make the strongest representations to the St. Petersburg government and obtain reparation and apology and assurances of the Russian Pacific fleet's good behavior for the future. It is held that the omission of the Russian fleet to stay its course down the channel to offer any explanation makes the case look exceedingly grave and the only possible solution of the mystery that has been suggested is that, excited by rumors recently spread of Japan's intentions on the Pacific engagement in the event of its sailing, the Russian gunners yielded to panic and supposed that the trawlers' rockets were signals of an enemy's fleet.

In view of the decision in the Alleghany case, it is regarded as quite impossible that the St. Petersburg authorities can be in any way responsible for the incident.

Considering the circumstances in the case, it is regarded as quite impossible that the St. Petersburg authorities can be in any way responsible for the incident.

Considering the circumstances in the case the latter places the officials more quick to say that the firing of the fishing vessels no doubt was a mistake, for which the Russian government will make a prompt reparation and apology.

STORY OF THE ATTACK FROM THE CAPTAIN OF A TRAWLER

London, Oct. 21.—The steamer owner Noppie, belonging to the Gamecock trawler fleet, which was fired on by the Russian Baltic fleet, arrived in the Thames tonight. Her captain, skipper, confirmed the details of the story as received from Hull. He said:

"Friday night there were about 40 vessels of the Gamecock fleet fishing in latitude 55 degrees 25 minutes and longitude five degrees six minutes. It was a misty, drizzling night. We spread over an area of some miles. Our admiral had just previously signaled by rockets and colored lights the fishing direction for the night. Whether that fleet appearing to us with what followed, I do not know, the whole thing is a mystery. Presently through the mist there appeared the lights of many vessels.

"Knowing that the Baltic fleet was [illegible] we naturally assumed that they were Russians, but I cannot say for certain. They were signaling one another and with powerful searchlights spied out every one of our fleet. Suddenly some of the warships started firing at about 20 boats which were nearest to them.

"We at first supposed they were blank shots, and the boatswain of the Tomtit, which was close in held two big fish out at arms length. Some say he was offering them to the Russians in fun and others that he meant to acquaint the Russians with the fact that we were peaceful fishermen and not disguised enemies.

Terror and Confusion.

"In any case there was no mistaking our occupation, for we were close enough for the Russians to see that our men were all engaged in gutting fish. When we realized that the Russians were firing shot and shell men were being wounded, all became terror and confusion. Nets were cut away, steam was gotten up and the trawlers hurried away as fast as possible.

"Judging by the rapidity of the shots [illegible] must have been about 40 guns. They were on the starboard side of us. The nearest was [illegible] two [illegible] length [illegible] the [illegible] one with brass heads.

"But with the darkness, the rain and the glare of searchlights, we were unable to identify the warships. After about half an hour the firing suddenly ceased and the fleet steamed away speedily in the direction of the English channel.

He confirmed the fate of the trawler Crane and her crew and spoke with [illegible] of the condition of the Russian fleet.

"It is impossible that we could have [illegible] anything but friendly. I can only imagine the Russians lost their heads and fired away in confusion and when they discovered their mistake steamed off."

Signals Were Ignored.

From interviews with members of trawler crews it appears that the admiral of the fishing fleet burned green flares to show that they were harmless fishermen, but these signals were ignored.

Eighteen injured men are here under treatment.

One trawler, the Wren, is missing and it is feared she has been sunk.

There were many distressing scenes at Hull during the day and night relatives inquiring after friends.

There is a rumor that the "Great Northern" [illegible] was [illegible] chased by the Russians. This report has not yet been confirmed.

GOVERNOR WRIGHT EXPLAINS CONDITIONS IN PHILIPPINES

At Request of Secretary Taft He Replies to Judge Parker's Criticism of Our Administration of the Islands.

Washington, Oct. 23.—The following correspondence from Secretary of War Taft to Governor Wright, of the Philippines, and from the governor to the secretary in reply thereto were made public at the war department today:

Secretary Taft's Cablegram.

October 18, 1904.—To Mr. Wright, Manila:

The Democratic candidate for president, in his speech at the present month in a public address, said:

"But the citizens of our people are sought to be benefited by our holding the Philippines, which is also by the president characterized as a benevolent assimilation. The government proposed by the Filipino constitution was one of ordered liberty, a republic modeled after our own. The Filipinos were entirely competent to govern themselves, and the only excuse for our forcible occupation of the islands was the greed of land and power. The Filipinos were fighting for their own liberty, and we were fighting to deprive them of it. The president has said that the Filipinos were incapable of self government, and that we must govern them for their own benefit. Is this the doctrine of the Declaration of Independence? Is it the doctrine of the constitution? Is it the doctrine of the Democratic party? Is it the doctrine of any party that believes in the capacity of the people for self government? Is it the doctrine of any party that believes in the right of the people to govern themselves? Is it the doctrine of any party that believes in the right of the people to govern themselves? Is it the doctrine of any party that believes in the right of the people to govern themselves

LAST DAY FOR CLUBS

Under Orders of Chief Reynolds They Must Close Before Tomorrow---One Has Already Closed.

Many of the so-called social clubs, which were ordered to go out of business a week ago by Chief W. H. Reynolds, are closing their doors tonight, and will be running under a 12 o'clock tonight ordinance. Some of the clubs will probably be allowed to remain open a few days longer, as considerable time will be required by many of them to close up.

Chief Reynolds issued the order a week ago Tuesday, giving the managers of the clubs until midnight tonight to close up their places.

It is understood that the Fidelity club, one of the organizations ordered to close, has already obeyed the order. This club has been stocked with papers in anticipation of a visit from the police, but none will make a test of the matter in the courts.

The sheriff served the papers Saturday and found the club preparing to close. In ordering the clubs to close Chief Symmes is carrying out the orders of the mayor who was requested to investigate the "clubs" as a result of the investigation he decided to order them to close.

Chief Reynolds told the managers of the "clubs" that he would give them until Tuesday to close their establishments and if he found any of them running on Tuesday he would arrest the manager and all those inside too. The club managers, it is understood, will make a test of the matter in the courts.

HIGH LINE RESERVOIR IS AGAIN OUT OF ORDER

The new High Line reservoir is again practically empty of water. Early yesterday morning it was decided to shut off the supply of the reservoir as it was found that the flow of water from the feed pipe was leaking away the filtering of the filtering. This is a matter which can be easily remedied however, so that no extensive delay will be occasioned before the water is again in the basin.

The trouble will probably be prevented by the installation of a 16-inch feed pipe in place of the present 12-inch one. The size of the new pipe has not been determined, as yet but the city engineer's office will probably decide on the matter today.

In the meantime the entire northern part of the city is being supplied from the old Santa Fe main, which was in use before the reservoir was completed. The pressure is nearly sufficient for domestic purposes at this season of the year but the pressure is not sufficient for the purposes or for supplying the upper stories of some of the larger buildings.

A break in the Manitou line Saturday was also the cause of the rapid reduction in the water of the reservoir. The 8-inch pipe near Adam's crossing burst at that time and caused a delay of several hours as well as shutting off a portion of the reservoir supply.

BLACK AGAIN IN THE TOILS

HE STARTED TO "CAST" ON HIS WIFE AND CREATED A DISTURBANCE THAT CAUSED HIS ARREST

David A. Black, who has figured time and again in the local courts because of his tendency to imbibe too freely, and then raise trouble with his wife is once more in the toils.

He was arrested last night on Huerfano street on a charge of disturbance. He had attempted liberty only one of hours when he was again taken into custody.

"Black has not completed serving sentence in the county jail for having trouble with his wife and for he entered into that institution on Saturday he commenced to drink Saturday afternoon and had not ceased considerable before Sunday, when he took a car north to "call" on his wife, as he said.

It appears that the latter resided in a dwelling on which was objectionable to neighbors and yesterday Preston C. Deckstader, of 536 E. Uintah, swore to a complaint before Justice Bixby and the warrant was issued resulting in Black's arrest last night. He will be taken before Judge Bixby today.

GEN. DOWNEN TO VISIT THE CITY

G. A. R. DEPARTMENT COMMANDER WILL BE TENDERED A RECEPTION BY LOCAL POST NO. 22 THURSDAY.

The trip has an unusual significance as similar tours of inspection are held regularly throughout the term of each department commander.

FREDERICK WARDE AND KATHRYN KIDDER.

Mr. Frederick Warde and Kathryn Kidder, both of whom have a large and enthusiastic following among the local playgoers, will be seen here tomorrow evening in Stanislaus Stange's great play "Salammbo." From a pictorial standpoint the play is intended to give some idea of the wealth, power and extravagant pomp of ancient Carthage, once the mistress of the world. Luxury is reflected in the costly nature of the costumes, which are supposed to have been worn and in the architecture of its temples and palaces. These features, together with its martial and court pageantries make of "Salammbo" a play unconventional.

But the play itself is evidently but so far from the extravaganza as its stage setting. The special scenic equipment is practically indispensable which brought about by the genius of mechanical methods of the present day and blended together by means of electricity and compressed air, is a triumph both physical and mechanical. In the latter Mr. Stange has been assisted by Walter Sterling of a prize winning scene which has been so long a feature of the stage, an ensemble of the entire drama which has been to long apart from the scenes.

If the lavish expenditure of money, coupled with artistic taste, may ensure success, "Salammbo" does play-goers a treat, for some of the most alluring and at the same time most unique stage pictures ever seen on the local boards. Mr. Warde's Carthaginian and Kathryn Kidder's Greek costumes are the acme of perfection, combining richness with beauty.

Eighteen Japanese arrived in this city early this morning on the Colorado No. 4 train of the Rio Grande and stopped only in order to get something to eat. Their presence in the capital soon led to a report that they were found for Japan to take part in the war.

They are silver miners, mine owners, or oil operators, and they were back for a golden rupee, and they are the best to be found. One of the Japs, when asked if they were going to the front, said: "No, simply to Denver. I am one of the owners and will be next year and will go then."

They were intelligent men, of prepossessing physique, excellent dressers, and all spoke English very well.

JAPANESE PRINCE ON HIS WAY TO THE UNITED STATES

Washington, Oct. 31.—It was stated authoritatively today that the purpose of the embassy of Japan in sending on a visit to this country his adopted brother, his imperial highness, Prince Fushimi, the [illegible] San Francisco about the middle of November [illegible] the express purpose of [illegible] the friendship between the United States and Japan. Mr. Rogers, Fushimi, the Japanese minister at Washington, in conversation of the legation with a correspondent of the Associated Press, said:

"When a person of dignity travels in a foreign country it is almost always the case that the occasion is used to start some speculation in regard to the object of his journey. So I do not expect that exception should be made of the visit of his imperial highness Prince. But to ascribe it to the so-called change in American feeling, as represented by some newspapers, is entirely to [illegible] from wild imagination. The [illegible] visit to this country was originally brought into consideration as long ago as last spring, but as it was a part of his object to see the Virginia fair at St. Louis, it was considered advisable to defer it to the autumn, when the exhibits will be in a more complete form for observation and for that reason this time was chosen for his visit. For these it, of course, no question about the principal object of his visit being to strengthen thereby the tie of genuine friendship so happily existing between the United States and Japan in a most commendable manner, but not in such garb with [illegible] as has been reported in some quarters.

"His highness, with [illegible] suite of [illegible] will [illegible] in imperial [illegible] only at Washington and St. Louis, but on all other cities he will travel incognito. This is another evidence that the real claiming here to start as tourist as has been reported. After his visit to [illegible] the [illegible] interested to see what opinion [illegible] of American genius and energy [illegible] the sensational, commercial and industrial centers of this country such as Boston, Philadelphia, New York, Pittsburg, Chicago, etc., to study the [illegible] causes of the greatness of the United States and one of the legitimate objects of this great republic is the influence of this kind [illegible] for good.

"As to the supposed change in the American sentiment toward Japan as often alluded to recently in some newspapers, I do not feel it at all. It may be [illegible] I have not been subject to a [illegible] of nervousness for some time that I do not feel such a change, if there is any. But in my opinion, so long as Japan has nothing in her motive or action to reflect on her that must be considered prejudicial to the legitimate interest of all nations she has no fear of losing the friendship of any people, and even if there should occur some [illegible] in this sentiment through misunderstanding or on account of unfavorable agencies, such misunderstandings soon must disappear, inasmuch as there is no real ground for its existence. We are not afraid of any such misunderstanding, but we implicitly rely upon the keen intelligence and good sense of the American people for a correct judgment of our cause and position."

Mr. Pierce, the third assistant secretary of state and Mr. Takahira are now preparing the program for the entertainment of the prince. High honors will be shown the distinguished member of the royal house and in addition to a dinner to the president at the White house there will be a reunion of official entertainment in his honor. It is probable the prince's tour will include a visit to West Point, as his highness is keenly interested in military matters, having already fought with distinction in the far eastern war.

EVIDENCE OF ROYAL AMITY

Berlin, Oct. 31.—The Chinese military attaches at the Russian embassy, personnel and Naval Court Von Tschirschky and Bogdandy, the military attaches of the German embassy at St. Petersburg, have been specially received recently by the personal of Emperor William and Empress Augusta. This is a return to the system in force at the time of William I and Alexander II, when their respective military attaches were thus given an [illegible] of greater intimacy with the monarch [illegible] they were accredited. The [illegible] is considered of great political importance and is interpreted as a strong evidence of [illegible] between the two empires.

[illegible] is learned that the German attaches now telegraphs daily reports direct to Emperor William concerning all the developments of war and even personal matters pertaining to the army.

LOTTERIES RAIDED IN NEW YORK CITY

REPRESENTATIVES OF DISTRICT ATTORNEY JEROME MAKE ARRESTS AND SEIZE $100,000 WORTH OF TICKETS.

New York, Oct. 31.—In a series of raids today, representatives of District Attorney Jerome seized $100,000 worth of lottery tickets and arrested six men and one woman. The prisoners are charged with selling lottery tickets at [illegible].

All of the parties, it is alleged, sold [illegible] tickets representing foreign lotteries.

The attention of the district attorney was called to the traffic in lottery tickets here by the mother of a [illegible] complaining the morning paid by some of the subscribers. The only way for the subscribers to get their money back was to sell their tickets to get their money back. [illegible] it is said, have in many cases taken the winning ticket, sent it to the company and received and kept the winnings. As there is no law to reach such a case, they are free to go.

SENTIMENT IS CHANGING

New Gold Camp, Once Strongly Anti-Peabody, Is Developing Big Republican Element.

Encouraging reports continue to come from Altman, the new mining camp near Victor, in the interest of Governor Peabody and W. S. Stratton of Cripple Creek, both of whom are heavily interested in the district, returned to the city last evening after several days spent in Altman. They report that the mining properties are developing rapidly and that many new mines are constantly being made.

Mr. Orbison expressed himself as very hopeful of the success of the Republican ticket in Teller county and the state at large. He says the sentiment is changing rapidly and that many of the miners who have formerly been opposed to Governor Peabody are now heartily in favor of his re-election.
